Liquor ordinance on hold

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Action on an ordinance establishing an unlimited number of Class BB package liquor licenses was deferred until Oct. 17 at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

Fifth Ward Alderman Lloyd Bailey, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, departed from his normal procedure and read the entire ordinance, rather than just its heading, before making a motion to defer action, seconded by 4th Ward Alderman Dan Brown.

"I just wanted to get the whole thing on TV before God and everybody," Bailey said after the meeting. "I think the people should know what these people are trying to put over on them. They're trying to pull a fast one."

The proposed ordinance provides for a Class BB license authorizing the sale of package liquor by businesses that had at least $500,000 in gross receipts from the sale of general merchandise, excluding gasoline, oil and alcoholic liquor, in the calendar year prior to receiving the license.

It would also be available to a new business that, in the opinion of the applicant and liquor commissioner, is projected to have at least $500,000 in gross receipts.

All businesses currently holding a Class BB liquor license that qualify for a Class BB license would be required to apply for a Class BB license at the next reissuance date.

The cost of the Class BB license would be $1,800 a year and there would be no limit on the number of Class BB licenses available.

The proposed ordinance was first brought out in a letter dated Sept. 20 to the members of the City Council from 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller, chairman of the Downtown Committee. There has been no discussion of the proposed ordinance on the council floor.

Miller's letter said the ordinance supports development while keeping liquor sales from being too widespread.

The letter ended, "If there is general support for this ordinance, we will formally bring it to the City Council on Oct. 3."

That letter prompted a reply letter from Brown, dated Sept. 23, in which he said he has "severe concerns about the wisdom" of the ordinance. He added that if the concerns were not "satisfactorily addressed, I will vigorously oppose" the ordinance.

Brown's letter went on to say, "Any attempt to suspend the rules and bring this measure to a vote without our citizens, our police chief, the news media and members of our clergy being given the opportunity to voice an opinion on the matter will be opposed with equal vigor."

In a reply letter to Brown dated Tuesday that was sent to all the aldermen just prior to the council meeting, Miller said a motion to suspend the rules is always a potential action and is an option of every member of the council.

"I really don't see how I can interpret your (statement) as anything but an accusation that something underhanded is about to or has taken place, and by that I am offended," Miller's reply letter said.

Six Flags ad angers Granite

By Meg Tobo

GRANITE CITY — Remember back in high school when the upperclassmen tried to sell elevator passes to unsuspecting freshmen? Remember how it felt if you bought one and then found out there was no elevator?

That's sort of how some local residents feel after buying $10 tickets for what was supposed to be Granite City Day at the Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park, Eureka, Mo.

The event will take place Saturday, and the ticket plan was revised Tuesday to further reduce the admission cost to Granite Cityans.

The deal for the exclusive day was struck between park management and the student council at Granite City High School. In the plan, students were supposed to see that 6,000 specially-priced tickets were sold to area residents for use exclusively on Oct. 7.

In return, the park was going to let in only those people who had the special tickets that day, and provide them with free parking as well.

Through the high school, local grade schools, banks, savings and loans and City Hall, more than 4,000 tickets were sold by the cutoff date, Sept. 25.

But because the students had fallen short of the designated number, Six Flags informed student council sponsor Steve Hamilton that the park would be opened to the

Bowler trial postponed again

GRANITE CITY — Another postponement has been issued on the sentencing of school board vice president Paul Ray Bowler on a charge of making false statements to a financial institution.

Bowler pleaded guilty to in February to the charge, which stems from his 1984 purchase of two properties in Pontoon Beach.

His sentencing was scheduled for May, and then was moved back to Oct. 5. Sentencing is now set for January 1990.

Lawyers in the case cite a backlog of cases in the court system as the reason for the additional postponement.

Following the plea, Bowler's school board post was challenged, but in March a judge ruled that the guilty plea was not legal grounds for removing Bowler from the board. Sentencing apparently would constitute such grounds.

Eagle Park to be 'drug-free community'

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EAGLE PARK ACRES — This small black community wants to put drug users and dealers on alert — it will not tolerate drugs and will be completely drug free by the end of 1990.

"It's our goal and I guarantee it," Ed Lee Salmond said.

Salmond, the Venice Township road commissioner, is chairman of the Eagle Park Action Committee. The Action Committee and the Eagle Park Improvement Association have been successful in cleaning up the community's physical appearance, getting the streets fixed and getting increased patrols from the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

"We're getting things done," Salmond said. "We've gotten a lot through (Madison County) Community Development funds. I've got to thank former Venice Township Supervisor) Christ Pashoff for finding the money and (Venice Township Supervisor) Richard "Popeye" Paterson for spending it."

Now, Salmond said, it is time to go after drug abuse.

"People said, 'Ed Lee, you be careful. Those people selling drugs are some powerful people.' People selling drugs act like we can't do anything, like they have some sort of license to sell drugs here," Salmond said.

"But this is our neighborhood. We were here first and we're not going to just give it away. We're going to take it back. ... I'm not talking about controlling drugs. That's like a house — if the people go inside the house they are still there; I just can't see them."

"With drugs we're not talking about sending them inside. We're talking about tearing down the entire house, wiping it off the face of the earth, tearing it right down to the ground and hauling off the pieces."

Salmond said drugs have infiltrated nearly every family in Eagle Park: "Maybe not in their house. But some where. If it's not a cousin, a nephew or a brother-in-law or something."

"The bad part is that the black community is just now in the 1980s; we can't afford to go losing ground. We just got our civil rights. We just got equal opportunity. We finally got past discrimination and got the help of a lot of people to better ourselves."

"Then here come drugs. ... I say to people, 'You're already black; isn't that enough?' Really, I'm not one of those people who cry about being black and having two strikes against you. I don't believe we have less opportunities because we're black. But I do believe we,

No charge for Sunday Home Journal

Some area retailers have mistakenly been charging 35 cents for copies of the new Granite City Sunday Home Journal, the Granite City Journal's circulation director, Joe Miller, has discovered.

The Wednesday Granite City Journal and the Sunday Home Journal are both free, despite the fact that the front page says they cost 35 cents, said Assistant General Manager Mark Schmersahl.

Schmersahl said merchants were apparently confused because the new Sunday paper, inaugurated two weeks ago, has a color front page. He said the price on it and Wednesday's Journal is there solely so those wanting copies of back issues won't complain when they are charged for them.

"Wednesday and Sunday are still free," Schmersahl said, "and they're still the best bargain in town."

Thursday's Press-Record, however, does cost 30 cents, because it contains features not found in the other papers, including editorials, staff columns, lifestyle features and society news.

Attorney charged with DUI, resisting arrest in Pontoon

PONTOON BEACH — A Granite City attorney involved in a weekend traffic accident was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and resisting arrest.

Paul L. Pratt, 55, of Bethalto, whose law offices are on Nied ringhaus Avenue, was also charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident following his arrest at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Illinois 111 and East Chain of Rocks Road.

The accident occurred when Pratt's 1989 Mercedes turned north onto Illinois 111 from east-bound Chain of Rocks Road and allegedly clipped the back end of Earl Aubuchon of Caseyville, Ill., distributor for the Sun, reported Monday two newspaper vending boxes valued at $400, containing about $150, were stolen from the front of the Illinois Department of Employment Security in the Central Bank Plaza, Cahokia and Nameoki roads, and from Corral Liquors, 3304 Nameoki Road.

A Sun vending box was stolen from outside Mrs. Seibold's Bake Shop in the Bellemeade Village Shopping Center on Nameoki Road.

Aubuchon returned to police headquarters at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday and reported a fourth vending machine, valued at $200, was stolen from the Illinois State Service Station, 1817 Madison Ave. An officer saw the machine in place at the service station at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday, he said.

Both drivers were southbound on Missouri Avenue. Justice's vehicle was stopped at the time, as she was about to turn left into Nameoki Drive, authorities were told.

St. Clair County signs 911 contract

By Rick Arnold
Staff writer

BELLELEVILLE — St. Clair County officials and Illinois Bell representatives agree the phone company will install lines for a 911 emergency telephone system.

But they differ on how long the project will take.

"They're (Illinois Bell) saying two years from the date the contract was signed but we're trying to expedite the process as much as possible," said Jim O'Loughlin, president of O'Loughlin and Associates, the St. Louis-based consulting firm which has been hired by St. Clair County to assist county officials in planning for the start of 911.

Officials from the county and Illinois Bell met Friday to sign the contract, which calls for the telephone company to install approximately 100,000 access lines for 911 in the county, O'Loughlin said.

Charles Davis, Illinois Bell's 911 coordinator for Southern Illinois, said last week that installation would begin "18 to 24 months" after the contract is signed, meaning that the system would not go on-line until September 1991.

"Illinois Bell is not especially familiar in this type of work," Davis said in explaining the length of the installation process. "The main thing you have to remember is that it's new to Illinois Bell and definitely new to St. Clair County."

But Fairview Heights Mayor George Lanxon, chairman of the county's 911 committee, and other county officials have said they'd like the system to be operational by the spring of 1991.

The county will pay Illinois

Bell a one-time installation fee of $4,000 per 1,000 access lines and thereafter a monthly fee of $150 per 1,000 access lines, he said.

O'Loughlin said the decision to install 100,000 access lines resulted from the fact that there are 88,286 Illinois Bell customers in the county and about another 12,000 county residents who use other telephone companies. Contractual agreements still need to be worked out between the county, Illinois Bell, and the other phone companies which serve county residents, he said.

O'Loughlin and Lanxon both said the major cost to the county is still to come, that being the purchase of the telephone equipment necessary to operate the 911 system. Lanxon said the committee's goal is to let the county for the equipment at its November meeting and to award the bids sometime next spring.

At its October meeting, the committee will vote on whether to include Fairmont City as a public service answering point (PSAP) site. The committee has already chosen 13 communities as PSAP sites, where 911 operators will be on hand to answer calls.

Lanxon said that work is also continuing on the preparation of a master street guide, which will list every address in the county.

"That's certainly a big task. I'm satisfied with the process," he said.

The 911 system is being funded by a 65-cent monthly surcharge on county residents' phone bills. The surcharge, which took effect in April, was OK'd by voters in a referendum on the ballot in last November's general election.

Ambulance company offers tips for safe trick-or-treating

In order to have a great Halloween, officials of Abbott Ambulance Inc. say, children should play it safe by:

- Having mom or dad check all treats before eating.
- Trick-or-treat only at the homes of people you know.
- Go with a group of friends or a parent—never go alone.
- If you can't be home before dark, carry a flashlight with you.
- Make sure your costume fits right so you don't trip over the bottom or catch it on bushes.
- Cut the eye holes of your mask large enough so you can see in all directions.
- Look both ways before you cross the streets, and never run between parked cars.
- Put reflective tape or an iridescent label on your costume so you can be seen in the dark.

Venice police

Cop signs complaint

Venice police Officer Mason signed a complaint of aggravated assault Sept. 27 against a man whom he had previously arrested, after the man threatened him with a wrench. The man approached Mason brandishing the wrench and said, "I will bust your head."

Mason called to a police report. The report said Mason got back in his car and went home, where he called two other policemen to file a report. The suspect had not been arrested as of Sept. 29.

Westfall forms unit to fight drug dealers

By Jack Cowan
Staff writer

ST. LOUIS — St. Louis County Prosecutor George R. Bush said he is forming a special unit to prosecute drug dealers and will push for mandatory jail sentences for dealers. Managers of a new drug prosecution unit will come from his existing staff, he said.

"It's the 'Crips' or the 'Bloods' want to come to our county, it will only be for a short visit on their way to the penitentiary," Westfall said, referring to two Los Angeles street gangs whose members have infiltrated the local drug scene.

Westfall also said he will ask County Executive Gene McNary and the county council to appoint a drug commission to help start education and drug treatment programs, as well as recommend possible financing sources for the program.

"As the 911 law enforcement officer in St. Louis County, I am the logical choice to serve on such a commission, and I would be happy to offer my services as chairman or member," Westfall said.

Westfall denied that his new policy and recommendation is politically motivated.

"I'm not jumping on the bandwagon politically, but I would like it's the right thing to do and the climate is right," Westfall said.

"You want to do things when the opportunity is best, and when President (George) Bush is focusing attention on the problem, this is the best climate."

"I can't go into a shell because anything I say might be interpreted as being because I'm running for county executive," Westfall said.

He also said he has not yet announced whether he will run for that post.

The special drug prosecution unit will not handle drug cases exclusively, "but that will be its primary area," Westfall said. "The cases were prosecuting now are spread out among the staff."

"We have a sex offense unit now that provides better resses than before when the cases were spread out, and we hope the new unit will be as effective."

Westfall said he also is hoping St. Louis County judges would be more receptive to recommendations for mandatory sentences if the suggestions come from a task force.

The county's circuit judges tend to put first-time drug offenders, including dealers, on probation, Westfall said.

"The judges might take our recommendations more seriously when they see it's the result of a task force," Westfall said.

Westfall also said he will ask that any defendant using drugs or alcohol agree to join a drug and alcohol education program as condition of probation.

"We need incarceration, education and treatment to combat the drug problem," Westfall said. "This area has been fortunate in not having the drug problem that other areas have."

"These are anticipatory, (not) reactionary measures after the problem has grown."

Simon wants stiffer sentences for criminals with weapons in drug-related, violent crimes

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate was expected to act this week on a bill introduced by U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., to stiffen penalties for crimes committed with some of the most popular "weapons of choice" now found in the arsenals of drug traffickers.

The Simon bill, written in cooperation with federal law enforcement officials, would boost from 5 to 10 years the mandatory added sentence for using a sawed-off shotgun or sawed-off rifle in a drug-related or violent crime.

It would boost to 30 years, from the present five years, the added mandatory sentence for using bombs, grenades or similar weapons in drug-related or violent crimes.

Thirty-year mandatory sentences already are in effect for those convicted of using machine guns or silencers during a crime.

The bill, introduced Sept. 29, will be handled by the Senate Judiciary Committee, where Simon is a leading member.

The Illinois senator said he will push for inclusion of the bill in anti-drug legislation that he says may reach the Senate floor this week.

Law enforcement officials say the iron-clad penalties now in the books are excellent tools in breaking up violent drug gangs and other drug traffickers.

Drug enforcement officials with the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) are supporting Simon in seeking the stricter penalties.

"Law enforcement officials tell me stronger penalties will help them crack the criminal code of silence and fear," said Simon.

He cited the "daily headlines from Columbia" as another impetus for action by Congress on the bill.

"This sends the kingpins a message: The king of lawlessness we see today in Columbia will never be tolerated in this country. Whoever it erupts, the penalties will be swift and severe," he said.

The measure will also help alleviate state prison overcrowding by permitting the use of federal courts and prisons for many cases now handled by state courts.

If, in a particular case, the underlying violent or drug trafficking offense is a federal crime, the offender faces a mandatory prison sentence in the federal system.

As of Aug. 26, 326 criminals had been sentenced under the recent statute, receiving a cumulative 1,815 years of mandatory prison time, according to ATF officials.

The agency says two-to-three times that number of cases are now pending trial.

Faced with certain prison terms, said Simon, suspects are more willing to cooperate with prosecutors.

He said Illinois police and sheriff's officers confirm that suspects are willing to exchange valuable information needed to bring other drug criminals to trial when they face stiff, mandatory sentences like those provided in the bill.

BAC brass enthused with report

By Rick Arnold
Staff writer

The dark clouds that had been hanging over relations between the Belleville Area College administration and faculty the past few years seems to be drifting away, according to a report by a regional college accreditation agency.

"Overall, there is a general attitude at Belleville Area College of 'guarded optimism.' As the board attitude has changed, and with the new chief executive officer, there seems to be a perception of improved communication at all levels," says the report prepared by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

BAC President Joe Cipri and Leo Welch, president of the college's faculty union, both indicated agreement and satisfaction with the report.

"With a high level of morale, we can concentrate on our duties without worrying about a negative proclamation from the board or administration," Welch said.

"I'm certainly pleased, but we've only just begun," Cipri said. "What I want to do is maximize the potential of the faculty and staff."

The North Central report, which also includes an analysis of BAC's Granite City Campus, is based on the observations of a two-member evaluation team which spent two days at the college in April.

In determining that the administration and faculty are on better terms, the report compares the results of the same attitudinal survey conducted by the college's chapter of the American Association of University Professors in April 1987 and April 1989. The April 1989 results show that a majority of faculty members believe they are respected more by administrators and that communication channels between the two groups have expanded since North Central's last visit in April 1987.

In the most recent survey, 78 percent of teachers said they're being treated fairly and equally while 22 percent said they were not. In 1987, only 25 percent said they were treated fairly and equally while 75 percent felt they were not.

Also in the most recent survey, 61 percent of the faculty members felt they had "a sufficient and proper voice in faculty governance" while 39 percent felt they did not. In 1987, only 24 percent believed they had sufficient say in faculty matters while 76 percent believed they had not.

The report also says that board members are getting along better with each other.

"The attitude of the board seems to have taken a more positive turn, and there appears to be a desire for cooperation and cohesiveness rather than confrontation in dealing with college matters," the report states.

Board Chairman Larry Reinbeck has said that although board members have different styles and different methods of operations, he believes they all have a common goal of making BAC the best college possible.

"The majority of the board is pretty solid behind the administration," Reinbeck said.

Clarification

The parking lot next to Novotny Chevrolet where toxic chemicals were found, as reported in Wednesday's Journal, is owned by Novotny. QuikTrip wants to build a combination convenience store and gasoline station on the block bounded by Niedringhaus, Madison and Grand avenues and 22nd Street. There are 16 property owners on the block. Novotny, who leases his buildings and lots, does not own the parcel where the chemicals were found or the adjacent properties.

Trinity Methodist bazaar Saturday

Trinity United Methodist Church will hold a churchwide bazaar and spaghetti supper on Saturday, Oct. 7, at the church at East 25th and Henry streets.

The public is invited to attend the event from 9 a.m. until 6:30 p.m., said Wanda Roboff, chairman. Booths will offer a variety of items.

The all-you-can-eat spaghetti supper will be served from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Mayor Von Dee Cruise will be the chief cook. Carryouts will be available. The meal will cost $3.75 for adults and $2 for children.

Psalm 31:1... "In thee, O Lord, is my trust; let me never be ashamed."

God can be trusted. He is no respecter of persons. He is the same to all who call upon his name. He does not change. The steadfastness of his love is forever. He can supply our every need. He can renew our strength. Lift our burdens, give peace that passes understanding. Trust Him. Doubt. Cast all your cares on Him for He cares for you. It is not necessary to define or explain God. It is necessary to have faith in Him. For to him that believeth in God, all things are possible.

The Apostle Paul writes, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ, for I believe it is the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth."

Will you put your trust in God? Today!

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Recently a man contacted this office with a question regarding the custody of his eight-year-old son. The man had been divorced three years earlier, and his ex-wife was awarded custody of the boy. The father was given visitation every other weekend, two weeks in the summer, and alternating major holidays.

The father indicated that his son had reached a point where he no longer wished to live with his mother. During his father's visitation periods, the boy would continually indicate that he wanted to remain with his father. On Sunday nights, he did not want to return home to his mother and begged his father to keep him.

The father asked whether he could keep the boy in his custody contrary to the terms of the judgment of dissolution. The father was told that he had to abide by the terms of the original court order until that divorce decree was modified. If he kept the boy in his custody without modifying the original judgment of dissolution, the father could be held in contempt of court.

What would the father have to demonstrate in order to change custody in this situation? He would have to show that there had been a substantial change in circumstances since the original dissolution of marriage. He would further have to prove that it was in the best interests of the child that custody be awarded to the father.

What types of things would the Court consider when deciding whether custody should be modified? Perhaps a father in this situation could demonstrate that the mother was abusive. In some cases, the mother may not be meeting the physical or emotional needs of the child. The non-custodial father may want to employ a psychologist to determine whether the child's emotional needs would be better served by a change in custody, and if so, to testify to that. In any event, the burden of proof in a case of this nature would be on the father to show that there has been a substantial change in circumstances. If the father does not meet this burden, custody will remain with the mother.

A final question was whether the child would be allowed to testify regarding his wishes as to custody. The Court may allow him to testify, depending on his maturity, but his wishes would not be binding on the court.

Traveler's club holds Sept. meeting

Travelers Abroad held its September meeting at Jerry's Cafeteria. There were 18 members in attendance.

Elma Hoover presided over a brief business meeting and the following persons agreed to continue in their present jobs: Dr. Alice Purdes, president; Genevieve McComis, treasurer; Hoover, meeting notifications; and Barbara Williams publicity. Hoover introduced Helen Lilly, who spoke on her experiences in Taiwan from late May until mid-July. She visited her grandson and his family who were posted to Taiwan with the State Department. Since the U.S. does not have diplomatic relations with the country, its employees are a closely knit group she said.

Taiwan has about 19½ million people in an area much smaller than Illinois. The two major religions are Taoism and Buddhism. One American dollar equals about 38 of their "dollars."

Because of the density of the population, the capital, Taipei, has a very high amount of pollution and many people wear masks. It is reported to be four times that of Los Angeles. City buses and two-wheeled vehicles (many motorcycles) add to the pollution and all deliveries of goods are made by the two-wheeled vehicles.

One of the special day-outings of the State Department people was a trip to the Palace Museum, the zoo and a special play area for the children which had special trees for the children to climb.

Mandarin Chinese language is spoken on Taiwan and Lilly's grandson is proficient in that dialect, which brought them several special invitations. They had dinner with a university professor in his tiny apartment; they spent an evening at a Japanese guesthouse which the State Department had access to.

All water was boiled and they had Chinese food almost entirely. They made one trip to McDonald's and one to Kentucky Fried Chicken. Pizza Hut and Hardee's were also there and all had very nice buildings.

A trip to the beauty shop was a very pleasant experience. For about 15 minutes, one receives a massage, starting with the scalp, working down to the shoulders, and then down to one's fingertips. Then the shampoo is given.

Lilly visited the Mao's Shrine, a huge monument which lists the names of all persons who have died in wars — both civilian and military.

It is guarded 24 hours a day with guards going six-hour tours of duty.

Children go to school five and one-half days a week and everyone wears a uniform.

One night, Lilly was taken to Snake Alley, which is a night market. Everywhere there were cages of snakes and everything imaginable for sale. She said it was unbelievable some of the things that were being cooked. Lilly said, "It was smelly, dirty, noisy and exciting."

Concert halls are inside the city and Lilly attended a concert featuring a group from New England. She also attended a Chinese opera which she enjoyed very much. The cast and the musicians were on the stage together and props would be carried on and off as needed. While attending an English-speaking Baptist church one Sunday, the speaker learned that the minister was from Kansas City, Mo.

One of the country's resort areas features a park in which everything is on a miniature scale. Two of the strangest miniature exhibits were Mount Rushmore and a Mayan Temple in addition to the Great Wall of China and other important buildings from Mainland China.

Lilly and her grandson's family spent some time in Hong Kong where they did much sight-seeing to the Peak, to the Aberdeen floating restaurants, and also a lot of looking and shopping. They took a hydrofoil trip over to the island of Macau for more sightseeing. Lilly was amazed at the different types of transportation available in Hong Kong. She said she tried everything but the pedicab.

Visiting friends or relatives or acquaintances, she was surprised to learn that so many people with Chinese backgrounds are leaving Hong Kong now, since it will be returned to China's jurisdiction in the mid-1990s. Many are re-setting in San Francisco, she said.

After visiting Hong Kong, the speaker could understand her grandson's hopes to be posted to that city after his duty on Taiwan in fulfilled. Lilly has 46 days in the Far East to recall now.

Also in attendance besides those named above were: Georgia Engelke, Dorothy Hoedebeck, Eunice and Juliette Hatcher, Edmund and Lillie Ann Firner, Waldo and Dorothy Frohardt, Charles and Eleanor Schweizer, Dorothy Lionberger and Lillian Delps.

St. Elizabeth Ladies Sodality plan bazaar

The St. Elizabeth Ladies Sodality discussed its upcoming Christmas Bazaar at its Sept. 26 meeting. President Lou Lyeria presided over the meeting. There were 35 members present, including two new members; Paula Ballew and Vicki Stuch.

Vickie Jacobs, general chairman of the 1989 Bazaar, announced that the bazaar will be held Sunday, Nov. 12 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Chairmen for the respective booths have been appointed and a roast beef dinner will be served. Proceeds from the bazaar will be pinpointed for purchase of new carpeting for the church. Marsha Chomko opened the meeting with a prayer, followed by a prayer in song by Father Don Wolford. Secretary Mary Evelyn Yencho read the minutes of the last meeting and correspondence. Treasurer Grace Parker gave the financial report.

It was voted to purchase a set of Catholic encyclopedias for parish use. Projects in which the Sodality will take part include: Church Women United's Fall Forum on Sept. 27; CWU Schuck's Luncheon on Oct. 6; and CWU blood drive on Oct. 19.

Father Don showed a video titled, "Doing God's Work Together" which deals with the 1989 annual Catholic Services Appeal.

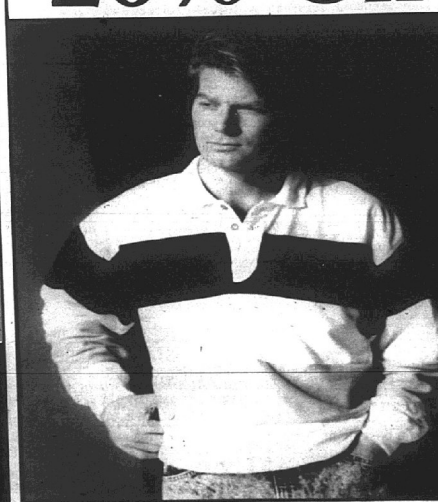

The Quilt-of-the-Month winner was Ann Barry; Pot-of-Gold winner was Joyce Mills; Madonna winner was Catherine Ponce; class attendance was a tie between Mrs. Thovenot and Mrs. Denkler's classes; and the attendance prize was won by Beulah Gauen. Refreshments were served by the mothers of the fifth-grade students.

Following the business session, a silent auction of crafts and bakery items brought by the members was held, proceeds from which will be used to pay for the fans purchased last month for the school rooms.

The next meeting of the group will be held on Oct. 24.

How America Deals With Its Most Pervasive Disease.

One in four families has a member who suffers from a serious mental illness. In fact, mentally ill persons occupy more hospital beds than all persons with cancer, lung and heart disease, combined. And few understand that serious mental illnesses are real brain diseases. Not somebody's fault. Face the facts. We can't solve this problem by ignoring it. ## Six Flags general public on Oct. 7, but that those who had already purchased the special tickets would still be allowed to use them that day, and would still receive free parking if they showed the special tickets at the parking gate.

Hamilton said the park officials also verbally promised him that they would not advertise "heavily" the fact that the park was to be open that day, thereby preserving some of the exclusivity for Granite Citizens in attendance.

Hamilton was disappointed, he said, that local residents wouldn't get the park all to themselves, but he agreed to the terms Six Flags offered.

Then came Sunday, Oct. 1. Hamilton, and dozens of other special ticket holders, opened their copies of a newspaper and found an ad from Six Flags. The ad said that adults would be admitted to Six Flags at a rate about $3 off the regular admission price, and that children under 11 accompanying those adults would get in free.

"I just couldn't believe it. There may have been their idea of not advertising heavily, but it sure wasn't mine," Hamilton said.

He wasn't the only one angry. The Press-Record/Journal received several calls from incensed residents Monday.

"I bought a $10 ticket for my kid, and now they tell me he could have gotten in free," said Debbie Simon.

The change meant that if a family of four in Granite City had purchased four of the $10 tickets for Oct. 7, the cost was $40, when it turns out the family could have paid about $29 for two adult tickets and taken the kids in free that day.

Repeated calls to Six Flags on Monday and Tuesday by this newspaper finally yielded the information that park officials were holding a special meeting to decide what to do about the complaints they received from holders of the special Granite City tickets.

By Tuesday afternoon, Hamilton heard from Six Flags officials, who apologized for the ad and told him that the special tickets would be honored any day for the rest of this season or for any weekend day in April 1990.

Parents will also be able to use the free coupons for their children on Saturday in conjunction with their own $10 tickets, and either save the kids' $10 tickets for use at the above-mentioned times or return them to the park for a refund.

Additional coupons are available in a new Six Flags ad on page 1C of this issue of the Press-Record.

"I still feel that Six Flags acted in bad faith on this. When we didn't meet our quota, they had every right to cancel (Granite City's exclusive use of the park). However, I think they tried to take advantage of the situation with the ad (on Sunday)."

"Then there was so much public outcry that they backtracked and did what they felt they needed to do just to save face," said Hamilton.

"The bottom line, though, is that I'm pleased that the people of Granite City will be able to enjoy a day at Six Flags for a reduced price even if it's not exclusive."

Eagle Park

they're not going to do the rest of the job."

"The road blocks catch some people, but they keep even more away. I know they do because a guy told me about a guy who called him and said, 'I can't come to no Eagle Park. They set roadblocks.'"

Salmond said Eagle Park will continue to seek help from Madison County Community Development to bring up the neighborhood.

"I'm not saying we don't need help; we do. But we're not like East St. Louis; we don't need millions. Just a little."

Finally, Salmond said, Eagle Park is going to make it clear that people with drugs are not welcome in the community.

"It's like a bunch of apples," he said. "If they're completely rotten, we'll throw them out. If they're just a little bad, with some spots, we'll try to salvage them. The really bad apples we'll get arrested and thrown in jail and the others we will try to rehabilitate before they get really bad."

Salmond said Eagle Park has been successful when taking community action in the past, such as eliminating burglaries through a neighborhood watch, because everyone knows everyone else and they all watch out for each other.

"We will get rid of drugs," he said. "That doesn't mean we are going to get guns and go out and start arresting people—that's the job of the police."

"But we can tell them they are not wanted here and there will be no compromise. If we can talk to them, fine. But if they don't get the message we will call the police."

"We can put it in the paper: Drugs are not welcome in Eagle Park. We are not snobs, but if they come in our community we are going to call the police and have them arrested."

If it comes to a fight, Salmond said, Eagle Park will not back down.

"In 1966, when I got out of the Marine Corps, the Warlords and Black Egyptians (gangs) were terrorizing the community. They owned it; you didn't do anything unless you dealt with them first."

Salmond said he was sworn in as a deputy sheriff and served for several years during that time.

"We chased out the Warlords and the Black Egyptians. Fortunately, nobody got killed, but there was some shooting before it ended."

The only way for Eagle Park to survive, as Salmond sees it, is to be free of drugs.

"I tell these kids, 'Can't you see that drugs lead to death? If the drugs don't kill you, the guy who is selling you drugs will kill you, or you will kill him and get killed, or the guy who's after that guy will get you killed or something.'"

"The shootings around here, they're all linked to drugs. In Washington, D.C., there is somebody getting killed every night."

a 1983 Ford pickup truck traveling west on Chain of Rocks Road.

Calvin G. Wallace, 29, of the 2500 block of Stratford Lane, driver of the pickup, sustained a minor injury in the mishap but did not require immediate medical attention, a police report said.

A scuffle between Patrolman Dan Abel and Pratt occurred at the accident scene and some scuffling also took place outside police headquarters, resulting in the resisting charge. Police Chief Chet Ballew said. Patrolman Rick Hayes responded to the accident with Abel, the chief said.

Pratt declined to take a breathalyzer test, the report said. He posted $204 bail and his driver's license was released, pending a Nov. 9 court appearance in Edwardsville.

Different blood factors could cause problems

By Dr. George D. Malkasian

Correspondent

Rh disease occurs when a mother and the baby she is carrying have different blood factors.

Just as babies inherit their size and appearance from their parents, they also receive their parents' blood type. In addition to the type of blood, there are a number of blood "factors," one of which is Rh.

Rh positive people have the Rh factor; Rh negative people lack it.

Rh factor becomes a problem for the baby when the mother is Rh negative and the father is Rh positive, and the baby inherits the father's Rh factor.

During pregnancy, the fetus is connected to the mother's blood system through an organ called the placenta. Although the two blood systems are basically separate, blood can pass back and forth during delivery.

To the mother's blood, the baby's Rh factor is a foreign substance, like a virus. When cells from an Rh positive fetus enter an Rh negative mother's bloodstream, the mother's body reacts by producing antibodies to fight the Rh positive blood cells. These antibodies then can return to the baby's bloodstream and attack the baby's Rh positive cells, causing anemia, a condition that may lead to serious illness, brain damage or even death of the baby.

Rh positive people have the Rh factor; Rh negative people lack it.

In most first pregnancies, babies are delivered before enough of the mother's antibodies have built up to cause harm. But when the mother becomes pregnant again with an Rh positive baby, her body has produced enough antibodies to cause problems in the fetus.

Today there is a way to prevent Rh disease. Pregnant women who are Rh negative and whose partners are Rh positive can be given an injection of a blood product called immune globulin. This substance fools the women's blood into not making antibodies.

Because this can happen during any pregnancy, Rh factor negative women are usually given two shots during a full-term pregnancy—once at 28 weeks and once at delivery. If the woman has had a miscarriage, abortion, or ectopic pregnancy, she also may be given a shot.

If a woman already has developed antibodies to Rh factor and becomes pregnant, she and the fetus will be monitored carefully throughout pregnancy. Other treatments, including transfusions of the fetus in the uterus (womb), can save babies who previously would have died from this disease.

Thanks to immune globulin, Rh disease soon may disappear. But you and your doctor need to work together to continue prevention of this problem.

Ladies' Coterie hear of local student's music trip

A dessert luncheon was served by Mrs. James Fox to 20 members of the Ladies' Coterie recently. Mrs. Harold Briggs introduced Program Chairman Mrs. Louis Mock, who introduced the 1989 Vocal Scholarship recipient Scott Tripp. Scott is a sophomore at Granite City High School and is active in Chorus and the Swing Choir. Meek announced that Scott placed first in the Soloist and Ensemble competitions at the State level. Scott sang "Wind Beneath My Wings," "Sing to the Lord" and "Via Dolorosa," and as a special request from Club President Mrs. William Albers, who taught Scott in the third grade, he sang "Tomorrow." Scott then gave highlights of his week at Eastern Illinois University at Charleston, Ill. He was taught choreography by Lorie of New York and the singing class focused on "Lost in Your World," "Proud Mary" and "Shop Around." Scott said that the dancing was disgusting because the walls of the dance area were wet with sweat and as the cuisine was not of the highest quality, meals were eaten off campus. Young people from Ohio, Florida and New York were Scott's associates. Mr. Meek returned Scott to high school after the program.

The members said the Club Collect and gave the pledge to the flag of the United States of America. President Albers welcomed everyone and gave a special welcome to Jan Kohl, an associate member from Florida. Members Mrs. Marvin Eddington and Mrs. Joseph Bilbrey, having been very ill, were welcomed back. Each thanked everyone for the cards sent them while they were ill. It was announced that Mrs. Fred Hargis is in Room 459 at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center. Lida Theis and Bess Louis were dropped as members.

Twenty members answered to roll call and the 1989-90 yearbooks were given to members by the secretary Mrs. Richard Schwendemann. The May minutes were read and approved as read. Mrs. Vasil Vasileff, treasurer, presented the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Dawson Wade read an invitation to attend the Jewel meeting Sept. 29 at the Waterloo Country Club; a request from the C.C. Department of Children and Family Services asking to attend a meeting and explain their program; an announcement from St. Elizabeth Hospital stating a cholesterol test is available for $5 in a minimum group of 25 members; a request for a contribution to the "Planned Asphalt Trail" by the Granite City Park Board; a request for members to get involved in political action in the community from the General Federation Club; a request for a donation to the FWC 111 Federation of Women's Club for statue of women who served in the Korean War; a request describing the commemorative 100th year of the Federation for $29.95. Mrs. David Friedman moved that two copies be purchased — one for the club and one for the Six Mile Society — Marguerite Barker seconded the motion and it passed. Thank you notes were read from Viola Edwards and Dawson Wade. A request was read from Irene Haug for removal from membership in Coterie due to ill health.

Mrs. Emmett Beeler reported that Mrs. Werner is doing poorly. President Albers requested that Mrs. Leonard Oram, Mrs. Harold Briggs or herself be notified if anyone knew of ill members. Petitions for membership were read from Marguerite Lexington, Lillian DePue, Betty Harmon, and Mrs. John Tonkoff.

President Albers showed an award received by Ladies' Coterie from the Radio Information Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. The 22nd Division Board Meeting will be held in the evening on Oct. 11 at Our Lady of the Snows in Belleville. The Fall Open Meeting will be held Oct. 27 at the Main Street Methodist Church at Alton at 9 a.m.

By laws Chairman Mrs. David Jean read proposed by laws changes and standing rules. Budget Chairman Mrs. Floyd Henley presented the proposed budget, which was deferred to the next meeting.

Marguerite Barker presented a conservation program which involved six subjects. Subjects used were "No deposit — no return," the ecology of improving air, water and soil, purchasing products that are degradable in packaging and biodegradable in detergents, etc. A poster depicted the art work of Russia and information offered of the freedom of sub- or arctic in Russia. T.S. Elliott was quoted as saying that the end of the world will be a fleet of waste trucks mired in their own cargo. Malta has requested more protection from space in the future. Puerto Rico is concerned about their trees. Chemicals and pesticides are being used on soil which runs off into streams. People then have no choice but to drink polluted water.

In connection with the conservation program, President

Albers announced that a biodegradable lady bug pin will be purchased.

Birthday honors were mentioned for Ella Wadler, Mary Hagaman, Esther Vasileff, Helen Friedman, Harriet Horn, Helen Stoever, Marguerite Barker, Mary Bilbrey, Loretta Reiske, and Donna Kapy.

President Albers announced that Federation President Vel Lurtz will visit the club in November.

Alpha Gams tour Pet Mill Homestead

A tour of the Louis Latzer Homestead (father of Pet Milk) was at the top of the itinerary of things to do in Highland, Ill., for the Laureate Alpha Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority on Sept. 16.

Our man in the White House

Section B
THURSDAY, OCT. 5, 1989
GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD

correspondent Al Freeman; second row, Dave Bartlett, formerly of NBC Talknet, and Maer; and third row, Mutual talk show host Jim Bohannon.

Raised in Granite City, Peter Maer broadcasts from 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. for Mutual Broadcasting System

By Andy Slings
Staff writer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — When Peter Maer goes to work, he goes to work at the same address as President George Bush: 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. Call him Granite City's "Man in the White House."

Maer, who grew up in Madison and Granite City, is the White House correspondent for the Mutual Broadcasting System and rotating pool correspondent for the NBC radio network.

He can be heard locally on Mutual's news affiliate, WIBV-AM, and NBC's news affiliate, KTO-FM.

He is the son of optometrist Dr. Stanley F. and Dorothy Maer, formerly of Granite City, now of Creve Coeur, Mo. Now 40, the 1966 graduate of Granite City High School talks to President Bush personally only every couple of weeks. But he travels with him on Air Force One and hobnobs with the rainmakers of the Beltway, both real and would-be. If you think that isn't exciting to him, you couldn't be more wrong.

Late Tuesday afternoon, for instance, during the failed coup against Panama's Gen. Manuel Noriega, Maer took about 25 minutes from what he said had been a "very hassled" 12-hour work day to talk by phone to the Press-Record.

Maer said he had filed constant updates for the hundreds of network radio stations on which he is heard. "I've been on the air two or three times an hour all day," he said.

Maer has been with Mutual for 13 years. He covered Jimmy Carter during the three months between his election and his inauguration. Later, he hosted Mutual's evening newscast, "The World Today." For four years now, he's been in the radio pressroom in the basement of the White House, where he is hooked up by computer to every Mutual and NBC correspondent in the world.

Maer said Bush is "much more accessible than Ronald Reagan was. Of course, presidents traditionally are, at the start of their terms." He remembers Carter as standoffish. "Nobody was ever close to Carter," he said. Maer has been in every state of the union but Vermont and in so many countries he hasn't been able to keep track of them all. He's been Mutual's news anchor for every national political convention since 1980.

Now, he's in the White House. "I'm permanently assigned here, as permanent as anything can be in this business, anyway," he said.

And he likes it just fine that way, thank you. "If you're a political animal like I am — and just about everything that goes on here has a political angle to it — this is the place to be."

While he finds the job a bit "confining," he manages to get out of the White House now and then. Try "tens of thousands of miles a year" of now and then. "President Bush likes to jump on Air Force One at a moment's notice," he said.

Although his work frequently takes him away from his wife and two children for days at a time, Maer said he is "as enthusiastic about my career now as I was when I was a kid." That career started at the Press-Record in Granite City and WIBV in Belleville while he was still in high school.

"I'm just as excited about writing a story about George Bush as I was seeing my byline in the Press-Record for the first time."

He remembered writing stories for the Press-Record from Valley Forge, Pa., where he attended a national Boy Scout jamboree. Chief Copy Editor Bill Winter was the associate editor here then.

Winter doesn't remember the Scouting stories. But he does remember Maer addressing the Madison Rotary Club while Maer was still in high school.

"He was very poised, very smart," Winter said. "He always had the right word at his disposal."

Pete Maer wanted to be a print journalist since he was 8. One event rerouted his career path into radio. Friday, Nov. 22, 1963. The assassination of President John F. Kennedy, which he called "The Pearl Harbor of our generation." Like most of us, Maer was riveted to the television reports and radio broadcasts that day. It got him to thinking, "Gee, why not do something where I can get the news out right away?"

His father, Stanley, said Pete showed signs early on of being some sort of writer. His teacher in second grade told Dr. Maer, "This kid should be a writer."

Dr. Maer remembered the JFK incident and how young Pete hung around the park across the street from the Maer house on East 27th Street that day, watching Bob Baker of WGNU in Granite City getting people's reactions to the tragedy. (Baker was actually Al Stevens, who died last year.)

Dr. Maer also pointed out some awards Pete has won, including two International Press Association Awards. He said it wasn't surprising that his son hadn't mentioned the awards.

Describing his son as "modest" and "not a show biz type," Dr. Maer said when Pete meets people socially, he never says, "I'm a White House correspondent."

"He'll just say, 'I'm a reporter,'" Dr. Maer said. Pete Maer said highlights of "getting the news out right away" include covering the Reagan-Gorbachev summit conference in Reykjavik, Iceland, and the big earthquake in Mexico City.

He gives credit to many people here for preparing him for his distinguished career. "People such as Bill Winter and former Press-Record editor-publisher Corky Townsend, who ran a journalism merit badge program for the Boy Scouts. (Maer was an Eagle Scout.) People such as 'fine Scout leaders' like Fred Hacke Sr. and teachers such as John Selmeier at Granite City High School and Laurie Reiske at Niedringhaus School.

"I'm always telling people what a good foundation I received in the Granite City schools," he said. What does the future hold for Peter Maer, our man in the White House?

"I'm quite happy with where I am now. I don't know what the future holds. I wouldn't mind having my own little radio station and living on the beach someday," he said with a chuckle.

Bidding a fond arrivederci to 4 countries I enjoy

It was "Arrivederci Roma" for us on Sunday. But there was no arrival home until Sunday, despite a six-hour gain in time.

It was a wonderful 16 days, but Sept. 30 proved to be a 23-hour "workday" for us due to the long Atlantic flight and due to Italian Customs workers' fuel and luggage delays — part of a "slowdown" protest, apparently over pay or working conditions or both.

KISS ME, I'M ITALIAN once was a popular phrase, but there was no affection on the airport tarmac, only gestures and shouts.

I'm not Italian, but the 4½-hour delay, confining us to our 747 for more than 12 hours, was easily offset by memories of an after-dark gondola ride in Venice and a final-night veal dinner at a restaurant in Rome. Italian and French chefs are skilled.

On the first occasion cited, a waterborne Italian tenor sang "Santa Lucia," among other songs, to us. On the second occasion, another Italian tenor sang, selecting "Santa Lucia" and "Arrivederci."

ALTOGETHER, Lois and I visited four countries and each was a joy in many ways.

On our fourth European journey and our sixth overseas trip each, for the first time we tried the full "If It's Tuesday It Must Be Belgium" approach. That's the name of a movie of a couple of decades ago.

This approach involves covering a lot of territory in a few days, utilizing a driver and a full-time tour director.

The driver performed flawlessly no matter what the traffic situation. He steered our 46-person coach over mountain roads and through congested city streets with equal ease.

THERE WAS a bit too much rapid, long-distance walking for an aging tourist like me. And there was a trifle too much "hurry up and wait" regimentation for a former Army sergeant like me.

But it's important to try to "travel well," to ignore minor irritations and regard it all as an adventure, a quest for new and exciting sights and sounds.

In mentioning sights, I'm not talking about our stay in Nice, France, where they seem to be so poverty-stricken that women cannot afford full swimming attire. By sights, I mean all those castles and monuments and statues, of course.

IN DEFINING traveling well, what I have in mind is not accommodations but attitude. There are so many differing cultures and practices, so many communication pitfalls, so many potential misunderstandings that you could write out a long list of complaints if you wanted to, but it's not the thing to do.

"Rolling with the punches" is the best way to survive and have fun.

IT'S TRUE that I prefer bacon and eggs to croissants and jam for breakfast. That I favor Nescafe and cream to European coffee and heated milk. But if you didn't encounter some of the European ways of doing things, what would be the point of going there?

To get back to our long Saturday, the first problem proved to be checking in at Leonardo da Vinci Airport on a busy departure day. The lines were long, and there were numerous administrative problems carrying any strange bags or boxes on board.

During the loading slowdown, our pilot studied his existing fuel supply and considered going as far as he could, Madrid, Spain, where he would refuel before heading west across the ocean.

But instead he outwaited the ground crew in Rome and was able to make an uninterrupted trip to New York.

AT JOHN F. KENNEDY Airport, we circled in order to land southeast instead of the desired southwest, and we waited more than a half-hour on the runway area before being assigned a Gate.

There was an extended baggage delay at the terminal, and boarding a connecting flight became impossible. The result was an overnight stay at the plush JFK Plaza Hotel, with TWA as our host. Along with the Hilton, JFK Plaza occupancy is high on a lot of nights due to such disconnected connecting flights.

Because of our "jet lag" fatigue, a night's sleep didn't seem that bad an idea at 11:30 p.m. on the same day we had awakened in Rome at 12:30 New York time.

AS YOU'D EXPECT, our luggage became progressively heavier as we acquired souvenirs, so the advantage of having the suitcases transported to and from our hotel room became increasingly apparent.

It's one of the pluses when traveling by motor coach. I don't enjoy heavy lifting.

The bus rides were fine from the standpoint of seeing varied countryside scenes. Unfortunately, some of the rides did not end until early evening, complicating efforts to take good photos of, for example, Prince Rainier's new super-yacht at Monaco.

(We didn't "break the bank at Monte Carlo," as an old song related, but we did manage to lose a few French coins in casino slot machines.)

NEARLY ALWAYS, time limits seemed to draw us away too soon from whatever we were doing, but the schedule did succeed in assuring a wide range of differing experiences and activities.

Noon meals usually were eaten under time pressure, but included such delights as a foot-long French-bread sandwich at the Cafe de la Pais in Paris and pizza at a restaurant facing the huge square in Siena, Italy, both meals being served outdoors.

Sidewalk cafes are everywhere in Europe.

Sorry, Walt Milton and Morris Miles, but Pepsi-Cola was seldom available at the places where we stopped. Fortunately, Coca-Cola was. It competed with the wine list and sometimes cost more than the wine.

THE CLICHE is true: It's great to go away on a vacation, and also great to get back from it.

Most of the year, I'd really rather be eating lunch near the table of those friendly neighborhood lawyers, Randall and Eric Robertson and Leo and Brian Korman.

Or near those friendly neighborhood restaurant owners, Jerry and Coleen Rodicker, instead of dining with blokes and Shellas from Austria, businessmen from Argentina, guides from France, and picture-snapping couples from Japan.

IT ISN'T JUST that the home-style cooking here is good, and less expensive, and that the menus are easier to read, but also that the home-style refers to my home, America.

If it's Tuesday it might be Belgium for some travelers — but I've never been there.

If today is Thursday, it's time for me to enjoy my favorite Thursday dish, one I'm sure you'll recognize as a typical American food. Make mine: K-tada.

Hear public's views on new liquor license plan

Does Granite City need an unlimited number of package liquor licenses?

That question was left unanswered by the Granite City aldermen Tuesday night and, we hope, will not be finally answered until the public has been given time to formulate its opinion and express it at a forum.

If ever there was an issue that would call for a public hearing, this would seem to be it.

We have been assured by Downtown Committee Chairman Jim Miller and Economic Development Director Alan Orthals that establishment of an unlimited number of a new Class BB style of package liquor licenses, issued to a specific group of retailers meeting strict requirements, would help increase development within the city.

We have been assured the Downtown Committee has thought through the issue with all its pros and cons, ups and downs, ins and outs, and has arrived at the solution that is best for all of us.

Maybe it has.

But if it has done all that homework, it shouldn't be too hard for the members to stand up in front of the public and answer the public's questions.

Eagle Park will fight drugs

It will be wonderful if Eagle Park residents succeed in their goal of making their neighborhood entirely free of drug abuse by December 1990.

It is an ambitious undertaking, but one that seems possible to do if families band together to safeguard the interests of both young people and adults.

An example of the strong will of Eagle Park residents — when they set their minds and energy to a task — was provided by the situation in the mid-1960s, when two street gangs dominated life in the community. Residents fought back and rid their area of gang influence and activity.

Drug abusers and dealers won't be welcome in Eagle Park, Ed Lee Salmond, Venice Township highway commissioner and chairman of the Eagle Park Action

Instead, the committee chose to place the ordinance establishing a Class BB liquor license on the agenda for Tuesday without any prior discussion of the issue at an open City Council meeting — and without soliciting, in an open meeting, input on the issue from even the other aldermen, much less the general public.

Had the possible creation of this ordinance been brought up at the previous city council meeting, one can be reasonably sure there would have been a number of people requesting a place on the next agenda in order to speak against it.

A cynical person might believe it was introduced in the manner it was in an attempt to avoid tying up the council's time listening to them.

We hope that's not the case. But if the committee brought in this ordinance without soliciting public input, because it didn't think of the ramifications of its action, it would be fair to wonder what else it overlooked.

Finally, in the form of advice, it might be wise for everyone involved to remember that, while constituents elect aldermen to work for them, they don't expect the aldermen to think for them as well.

Committee, has made clear. Law enforcement roadblocks already have helped reduce drug transactions, and have efforts to improve the neat appearance of the area, eradicating weeds where law violators could assemble.

Even more roadblocks are being sought and it also is hoped to upgrade street lights. Individuals and families will be asked to cooperate in alerting authorities whenever illegal drug operations occur.

Drugs pose one of the greatest hazards currently facing Americans. It will be an outstanding accomplishment if Eagle Park can become one of the few United States residential areas where this evil is eliminated.

Hoelscher aided plant's viability

The death of Wilfred "Bib" Hoelscher on Sept. 30 recalls the era in which Granite City Steel expanded and modernized repeatedly to keep pace with changing technology, much as it is doing currently as a division of National Steel Corporation.

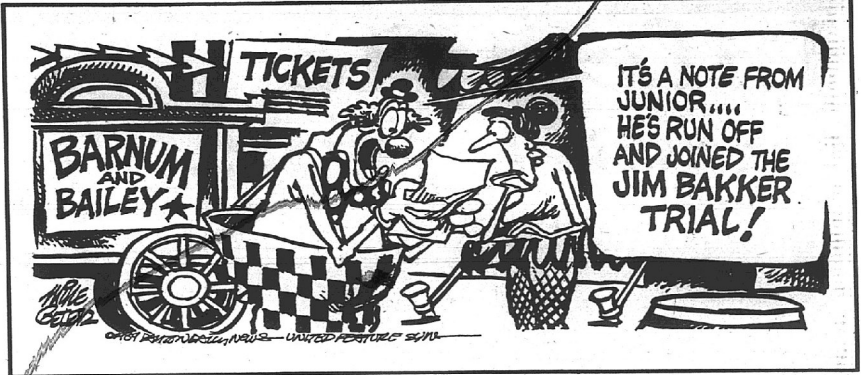

Leaving the Price Waterhouse accounting firm in 1947 to join the independent steel manufacturing company here as assistant treasurer, the native Granite Citian was promoted to secretary and assistant treasurer in 1951, secretary and treasurer in 1957, vice president, secretary and treasurer in 1965 and, after the merger with National in 1971, vice president of finance until retiring in 1972.

As Granite City Steel's chief financial officer during a sustained period of expansion, Bib Hoelscher played a prominent part in maintaining the plant's competitiveness.

This involved arranging financing for projects that often totaled in the neighborhood of $75 million to $150 million. Such improvements cumulatively transformed the local facility from average size to the "big leagues."

When even this high level of operations could not be continued in the face of steadily intensifying cost and quality competition, the gains that had been achieved made possible a viable role as one of the three principal steel-making units of National Steel, now jointly owned by National Intergrupp Inc. of Pittsburgh and the giant Nippon Kokan steel company of Japan.

Won't vary from his promises

To the editor:

The contract negotiations at Belleville Area College with the full-time faculty were recently concluded, with the board voting 6 to 1 to approve the new contract.

This was the first real test of Dr. Joe Cipri, president, and the board. Were we going to be able to clean up the gross inequities in compensation?

Dr. Cipri and my associate board members seem delighted with the results.

Personally, I feel we caved in to the faculty union's demands and deserve an "F."

The problem has been compounded, and the taxpayers are going to pick up the tab.

Let's look at the figures. Base salary increases range from 24.89 percent to 75.4 percent, with total compensation increases ranging from 18.43 percent to 65.91 percent over the next three years.

As a result, total compensation, excluding fringe benefits, will boost the average pay for 70 percent of the full-time faculty to over $60,000, assuming each faculty member continues to teach the same courses.

In addition, the yearly longevity pay increases for over Step 22 more than tripled.

Also, it was agreed that faculty members could take cash in lieu of fringe benefits.

Another point that needs to be cleared up is the pay increases.

It was reported by a Belleville newspaper that the contract increases averaged $7,100 per person.

Actually, the average increase is $11,058. Somehow, almost $4,000 per person got lost on the way to the press. There is no doubt that, when it comes to looking out for the taxpayers' pocketbooks or trying to bring equity to employee compensation, I certainly march to a different beat than Dr. Cipri and my fellow board members.

It would be nice to follow the lead of Dr. Cipri, but I made some very clear campaign promises.

I will not vary from those positions regardless of how many times the vote is 6 to 1.

Capitol report

Calls S&L bailout little more than deficit-hiding 'gimmick'

The following is by U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville.

Although many Americans aren't aware of it, President Bush and many members of Congress recently passed up an opportunity to save billions of dollars that could have been used to fight drugs, fund education programs or expand health care in America.

In July, the President signed House Resolution 1278, the massive savings and loan bailout called the Financial Recovery Act.

The Bush administration estimates this bailout will cost $166 billion over 10 years, with the taxpayers footing about $50 billion of the total.

I voted against the measure because I felt the President's economic advisors greatly underestimate the eventual cost of this problem.

For instance, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), an independent, non-partisan agency which examines legislation, estimates this bailout will cost $203 billion over 10 years, with more than $150 billion to be paid by taxpayers, and the rest by the S&L industry.

Why is their estimate so high when compared to the administration's? One reason is that the administration assumes deposits to S&Ls will increase by 7 percent a year. I find it hard to believe that confidence in the industry will return to a level where people feel comfortable putting their money into savings and loans.

But the most unfortunate result of the legislation involved the financing of the billions needed immediately to close bankrupt S&Ls and pay off depositors. To raise those funds, President Bush insisted that the financing be kept "off-budget," through a new Resolution Funding Corp. and not through the federal government.

"Off-budget" status hides the true level of the federal budget deficit, making it look smaller and the economy stronger.

Congress wanted to keep the financing "on-budget," to issue government bonds through the U.S. Treasury at a much lower interest rate.

But with the President threatening a veto, a compromise was reached: about 40 percent of the financing "off-budget."

Because of the higher interest rates non-Treasury bonds must pay, this move will cost taxpayers about $2 billion to $4 billion a year. This money could be used to pay for education or the war on drugs, but instead will be sacrificed to a gimmick to make the federal deficit look smaller.

One thing was clear with this bill: Action had to be taken to stop the downhill slide of the S&L industry. However, the financing measures used were a terrible waste of federal resources, and a missed opportunity.

Time waits for no man

A recent phone conversation with a good friend of mine, Ollie Derr of Granite City, convinced me that the more said about deadlines the better.

"Why is it," she asked me, "that if I turn in something eight days before it is supposed to be printed that it still isn't?"

Fair question, I replied. Unfortunately the answer is so complex that it's going to take a couple of weeks to explain it.

Following is the first of two columns that I hope sheds some light on the process. This is the sequence of events, from the time an item is dropped off at the office, until it is printed.

1. During working hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday any news item brought to the building will be either placed by a clerk in the newsroom basket at the building entrance or it will be brought to me. At a minimum that will take five minutes. At a maximum it will take 12 hours, particularly if an item comes in at the end of the day.

2. Items go from me to the business, school, photo, sports or society desks. At a minimum that will take 12 seconds; at a maximum, 12 hours, depending on shift changes, days off, etc.

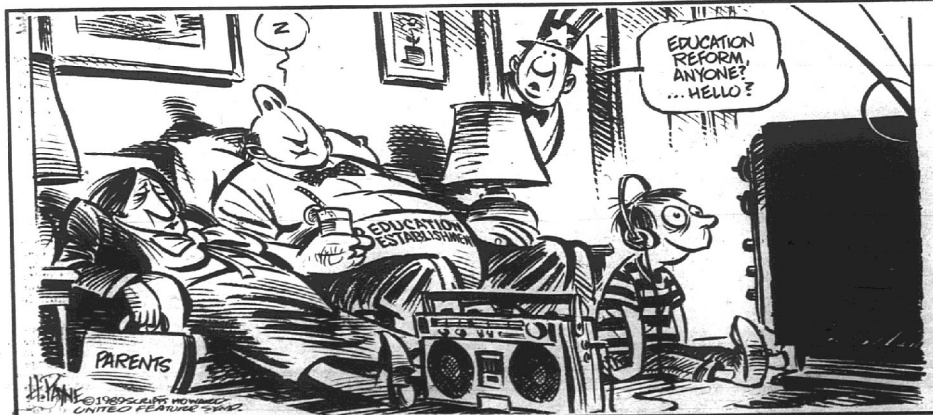

3. Once in the right person's hands, the correspondence joins the stack of other items brought in that day. It usually goes to the bottom so as not to take unfair advantage of what's already there. The desk will get to it, do a mark up and pass it on to the typesetter. That process might take up to 12 hours, depending on shift changes, etc.

4. The typesetter will normally get the item typed in the following eight hours. The typed version will be computerized to one of our two copyeditors.

5. The copyeditor generally will get the item processed in 48 hours. The item is then ready for a page editor to place in the soonest possible edition. Still to be done with, however, is space availability and the fact that we're not printed daily. Another four or five days is frequently required.

In truth, it normally takes a minimum one week and a maximum two weeks to get something in the paper. Stay tuned for some how-tos.

GRANITE CITY — Marie Szymczek has joined CVM Realty in Granite City, owner Jeanette Holder recently announced.

Szymczek has more than 20 years of experience in real estate and said she looks forward to continuing her growing career in the field.

CVM Realty is located on Niedringhaus Avenue in Granite City and represents a new concept in real estate sales because it videotapes each house it lists, allowing potential buyers to view houses in the office and then make appointments to see only those houses they have a real interest in purchasing.

Economists: Danger passed

DECATUR — Despite strong indications of a recession, Millikin University economists believe that the worst danger has passed and the economy will rebound. Dr. Anthony Liberatoro and James Watson, associate professors of economics in Millikin's School of Business and Engineering, analyze possible scenarios in controlling inflation in the latest issue of the "Quarterly Economic and Financial Forecast."

"Although our analyses show the economy is perilously close to a recession, we believe monetary authorities have successfully avoided a downturn in production by controlling and fine tuning economic growth, inflation and interest rates," Watson said.

Earlier this year, the Federal Reserve Board pushed interest rates up in an attempt to slow economic growth and inflation.

By the end of June, public concern shifted from a fear of inflation to a fear that the Federal Reserve Board had stepped on the brakes too hard, Watson said. The Fed responded by increasing growth in the money supply and, as a result, interest rates eased.

"We are betting that those actions will result in stronger growth near the end of 1989 followed by a rising inflation rate in the 5 percent range," Watson said.

Once again, the Fed will reverse its expansionary monetary policy resulting in rising interest rates, he believes.

"The inflation rate will rise to the 6 percent range by late 1990," Liberatoro said. "Although this drift is not alarming, we believe 6 percent is somewhat of a danger zone and a threshold the Fed does not want to cross."

"Our scenario changes if the current weakness in the economy is worse than we believe. If the third or fourth quarter of '89 has negative growth, then the expansion is over and the inflation and interest rates will fall for a sustained period."

The economists use an econometric forecasting model to help prepare "Quarterly Economic and Financial Forecast" which is available by subscription to businesses and the public.

No award in asbestos lawsuits

GRANITE CITY — A circuit court jury has refused to award money to the estates of two men who claimed working with asbestos led to their illnesses.

Both men died of cancer after the suits were filed.

The circuit court jury deliberated more than four hours before reaching a verdict Sept. 27 in favor of Celotex Corp., an asbestos product manufacturer.

Several other manufacturers of asbestos products named as defendants in the lawsuits reached out-of-court settlements. Terms were not disclosed.

Harry Parker of Wood River and Larry Evans of Godfrey died last year of mesothelioma, a cancer of the chest lining linked to asbestos exposure.

The lawsuits claimed they died as a result of exposure to asbestos products. The lawsuits were joined and tried in Granite City before Circuit Judge Paul Riley.

Parker and Evans had worked at the Shell Oil Co. Refinery in Roxana, but Shell was not a defendant in their lawsuits. Parker worked at Shell from 1940 to 1962 and was 82 when he died. Evans worked at the refinery from 1953 to 1968 and was 56 when he died.

The lawsuits were among about 2,500 filed in Madison County since 1986. Most still are pending.

Asbestos is the common name for several fibrous minerals, highly resistant to heat and acids, that were widely used as insulating and fireproofing materials. Asbestos has been linked to several diseases, including mesothelioma, lung cancer, gastro-intestinal cancers and asbestosis, a scarring of the lungs.

ICC, CUB representatives at meeting

By Susan Draglich
Staff writer

COLLINSVILLE — A spokesman for the Citizens Utility Board said Thursday that Illinois Power will always come back for more if the Illinois Commerce Commission agrees to hear the company's request for a $265 million electric rate increase.

Lamont Tarbox, director of governmental affairs for CUB, and N. Richard King, executive director of the ICC, were guest speakers at state Rep. Ron Stephens' legislative advisory board meeting held at Char's Restaurant.

Stephens, R-Troy, said he called together members of the group to learn more about the role of the ICC and the rate-making process.

The advisory group is made up of citizens from the 11th Illinois House District. Stephens said he wants those citizens to be the "eyes and ears" of their neighborhoods.

Tarbox said the ICC is facing an important challenge when it considers IP's request for a rate increase.

King said the power company obviously feels enough has changed since the last rate case to file a new one.

IP was granted a $61 million rate increase in March but is appealing it, claiming it needs the amount to cover the costs of the Clinton nuclear-powered electricity-generating plant.

According to Arthur Tate, manager of consumer services for the ICC, the commission has 11 months to make the rate decision. The ICC is calling for public input, both objections and support, he said.

Seven commissioners appointed by the governor make up the ICC board; they will make the final decision on the rate.

Stephens is advocating a change in the manner of choosing ICC members — appointment by the governor but then a periodic vote by Illinois citizens to retain or reject them.

Tarbox told the group that "since the ICC has such an enormous impact on families, the CUB is giving serious consideration to the accountability of elected commissioners."

Tarbox said the ICC should not consider the IP request.

By bringing back this challenge, Illinois Power has posed a serious question to the ICC," said Tarbox. "Does the ICC have enough self-confidence to stand by its decision?"

Tarbox said he is concerned that if the ICC agrees to hear the issue again, the power company will return every 11 months with the same arguments.

Charitable giving helps giver as well

By Bob Hardcastle
For the Journal

Studies have shown that a great number of Americans are charitable. There are economic and tax-related reasons for charitable giving just as there are non-economic and non-financial considerations.

An individual can make a charitable gift for many reasons, including religious purposes, to help a specific organization, to reduce the federal income tax liability, to reduce estate taxes and for other sophisticated estate-planning reasons.

Regardless of whether the individual is focusing on benefits related to federal income tax, federal estate tax or federal gift tax, there are certain basic rules and concepts that apply to charitable giving.

A taxpayer can take a charitable deduction in the income, estate or gift taxes even if the sole reason for the contribution is to reduce tax liability.

Estate taxes must be paid within nine months of the death of the decedent, although time extensions are allowed under the provisions of section 6166 of the Internal Revenue Code.

If the money needed to pay the estate tax due the IRS is not immediately available, money might be taken from the estate by setting up a trust to pay the estate tax, usually at a loss.

Charitable contributions will help preserve an estate's value because such gifts trigger a federal tax deduction that allows the donor to deduct the value of the gift from the estate's taxable assets.

A taxpayer makes contributions to charitable organizations, federal income tax and federal estate tax deductions are triggered. When these contributions comprise assets other than cash, charitable deductions will reduce various tax liabilities, thereby making more money available for the surviving spouse and family members.

If the organization receiving a contribution is religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational in nature and the contribution is going to be used outside of the United States, the federal income-tax deduction is allowed. Even in these instances the deduction still is allowed when computing federal estate and gift taxes. Find out what organizations the IRS deems eligible for deductions under codes governing federal estate, gift and income taxes.

However, the primary reason a donor chooses a specific charity generally will not be tax-related. Donors generally wish to help advance the cause or objective of the organization targeted by the donation.

When planning an estate, questions about donations should be directed at an attorney, certified public accountant or financial planner. The proper use of charitable giving in the planning of retirement and the structuring of an estate could provide more money for the retiree and his family and, at the same time, reduce taxes.

Bob Hardcastle is the host of "Money Talk" on KXOK-AM (630) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays.

POSTAL EMPLOYEE RETIRES: Robert Lewis, left, is congratulated Friday morning by Granite City Postmaster Charles Parkinson on his retirement from the Granite City Postal Service. Lewis, with 28 years of government service, has been the superintendent of postal operations for the last 10 years.

New law protects credit consumers

A new federal law arms consumers with a strong new weapon to combat the high cost of credit cards.

The new legislation for the first time forces banks and department stores to disclose in their solicitations the key financial terms of their credit and charge cards, according to Bankcard Holders of America (BHA), a 100,000-member non-profit association protecting the rights of the nation's 76 million credit card consumers.

BHA urged consumers to use their new rights to shop carefully for good rates on credit cards, and released their latest "Fair Deal" list of the nation's best credit cards.

"The new law finally enables consumers to comparison-shop for credit cards before they apply for them, before the banks scrutinize their personal credit reports, and before they receive their new cards," said Elgie Holstein, BHA director. "Prior to the new law, consumers often did not find out the amount of annual fees and charges they would have to pay until after they applied for and received a new card."

BHA first drew national attention to the credit card disclosure problem in November of 1986, when it released the results of its national survey of credit card advertising practices. The survey revealed that banks throughout the country were "engaged in misleading and deceptive advertising tactics." BHA then called upon Congress to restore price competition to the credit marketplace by closing the loophole in the Truth-in-Lending Act that was permitting banks to conceal their rates and fees until after they issued their cards.

The new law closes that loophole, as BHA recommends. "In the past, consumers could only guess how much a credit card was going to cost them," said Holstein. "The result is that most Americans have gotten stuck paying interest rates averaging 18.5 percent, and millions are paying as much as 21 percent. In fact, many consumers do not even realize that they can shop around at different banks for a better credit card deal."

The new "Fair Credit and Charge Card Disclosure Act of 1988," which amends the federal Truth-in-Lending Act, provides the following protections for cardholders:

It applies not only to bank credit cards (such as Visa, MasterCard and Discover) and department store credit cards, but also to charge cards (such as American Express and Diners Club), on which all charges must be paid in full each month.

"In all their solicitation mailings, credit and charge card issuers must 'clearly and conspicuously' disclose their key financial terms, including, when applicable: the interest rate, fees, grace period, minimum finance charge, purchase transaction charge and balance computation method.

"Card issuers must give advance notice to their existing customers when their accounts are about to be renewed for another year and another annual fee is to be charged."

Consumers should use the renewal notice as a reminder to switch cards and save," Holstein stressed. "But they do not have to wait until they receive the notice to change cards, and they don't have to pay off their old card first."

Holstein noted that while most card issuers require all outstanding balances to be paid off completely in order to cancel an account and avoid another annual fee, most cardholders who "carry over" monthly balances can save more than $100 this year by using a cash advance on a new low-rate card to pay off the outstanding balance on their current, high-rate card. "Even if you've already paid the annual fee on your current card, you'll come out way ahead by switching," he said.

"The new law is not perfect, however," warned Holstein, "so consumers are still going to have to be wary of credit card ripoffs."

Clayco opens office in Granite City

The Special Projects Division of St. Louis-based Clayco Construction Co. recently opened a 7,000-square foot office in Granite City, it was announced by President Robert Clark.

Located off Route 3 on Rock Road, the office is on a one-acre site and includes a construction yard.

Clayco acquired the division in 1985 from Brook Erection and offers expertise in the heavy industrial construction field. Work includes specialized welding with certified code stamps, intricate equipment maintenance and repair, emergency projects, mechanical work and comprehensive millwright and boiler-maker equipment service and installation.

"Having completed $7 million in projects already this year, the division is expected to gross more than $10 million in 1990," Don Wright, vice president of special projects, said.

This represents an anticipated growth rate of 300 percent over current figures. Wright said that the division is expanding into new areas, recently having been awarded new contracts within the mining industry.

The division has primarily done work in Illinois for clients which include: Granite City Steel, Jefferson Smurfit's Alton Box Division; Olin Corporation of East Alton; and Air Products in Granite City. A recent $1 million shut-down job was successfully completed in Saugeit for Big River Zinc. The division has also completed special projects in Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana.

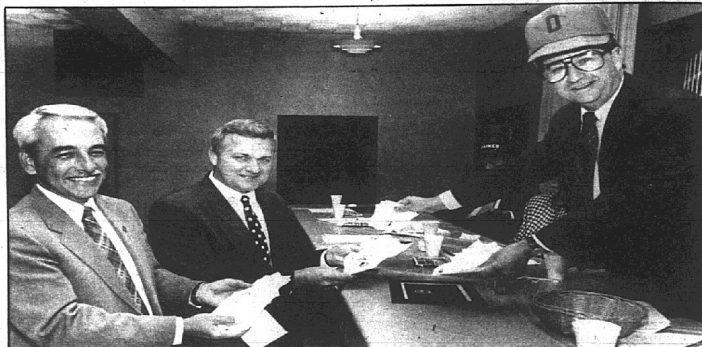

Clayco has been involved in commercial construction since 1984, recently providing renovation services as the general contractor and construction manager for the Union Security Center Business Park at the site of the former General Motors plant in St. Louis.

Having completed approximately $20 million in work this year, the company specializes in commercial renovations, interior construction, new building construction with an emphasis on the banking industry and the renovation of the office and bulk warehouse markets.

United Way campaign has strong start

By Patrick Foley
Staff writer

Over one-third of the Tri-Cities Area United Way goal for the 1989 fall campaign was reached by the first report breakfast last week.

To date, $338,000 of the $901,000 goal had been pledged, according to Drew Karandeff, general chairman of the campaign.

"Of this amount we have received more than $46,000 of the $60,540 'new money' goal," Karandeff said. The "new money" is any pledged from previously unsolicited sources.

Highlighted during the breakfast meeting was the Granite City Steel division of National Steel, with the largest corporate pledge of the campaign totaling $115,000. This is an increase of $5,000 over last year.

"We'd never be a (nearly) million dollar United Way without the help of National Steel," said Richard Kearns, Division D leader.

Kearns reported a pledge total of $199,792 or 33 percent of the $609,000 division goal.

Bill Terrell, leader of Division A — business and commercial, reported pledges to date of $89,498 or 54 percent of the goal.

Among businesses mentioned by Terrell for significant increases were Central Bank, The First National Bank in Madison and the Granite City Press-Record/Journal.

Eric Robertson reported his group, Division B — professional, had received half of its goal with pledges totaling $41,097.

Singled out by Robertson were the employees of the United Way agencies, whose total pledges were $15,400.

Carol Squires, Division C leader, reported $27,678 or 35 percent of the $80,000 division goal.

She thanked the St. Elizabeth Medical Center Auxiliary for its $2,500 pledge.

Square dance groups seeking new dancers

Harold and Janet Davis of 2230 Shirlene Drive have been elected co-presidents of the Wood River Hoedowners Square Dance Club.

The couple will assume office Jan. 1.

The bi-state St. Louis metropolitan area has more than 50 square dance and round dance clubs which have joined together in the Greater St. Louis Square and Round Dance Council, the Davises said.

All the area clubs are introducing square dancing to new members and potential members during October, Harold Davis said.

And many clubs are now organizing new dance groups to help beginners learn about square dancing, he added.

The Hoedowners began weekly square dancing lessons on Tuesday, Oct. 3, and persons interested in learning square or round dancing are invited to call Davis at 931-6249 for further information.

The first lesson is free and a $5 per couple fee will be charged for each subsequent lesson, he said.

Just as the music is a blend of styles, so are the dancers, Davis said. Participants range from company executives to unemployed persons and from students to retirees, Davis said.

Square dancing is enjoyed worldwide and has often been described as "fun and friendship set to music," the local couple said.

'50's teen idol now an RV know-it-all

Where do '50s teen idols go three decades later? Not to comebacks on the big screen, but to starring roles in promotional videos.

Tab Hunter, whose best movies were "Damn Yankees" (1958, Warner, $19.98) and "Polyester" (1980, Thorn/EMI, $19.98), co-produces and hosts "Hollywood on Horseback" (1989, First Run Video, $19.95, 213-638-2111), which bills itself as a "visit to the homes and stables of many of your favorite stars."

Pat Boone, the wholesome star of "Journey to the Center of the Earth" (1959, CBS/Fox, $19.98) and the co-star of Ann-Margaret in "State Fair" (1962, CBS/Fox, $19.98), now is hawk camping trailers in the inspiringly titled "Pat Boone Hits the Road" (1989, R.S. Enterprises, Inc., $29.95, 213-274-5027). Boone's effort is subtitled, "The RV Video Guide" (for you urban dwellers who don't know, RV means "recreational vehicle").

Boone never has seen an RV he didn't like. In fact, he says the different types of motorized homes in the video, he is apt to exclaim, "Oh, wow, or 'This beautiful, Split-level.' One machine, the Van Conversion, has Boone confessing, "I drool over this one, this has a sensual feel to it."

Don't get the wrong idea. Boone is no hedonist. In fact, he stresses "the joy of the RV lifestyle—it's really about family."

The video begins with Boone cooking marshmallows with three members of his family: two grandchildren, "these knuckleheads," and his wife, "the lovely young lady who started this whole thing with me." There is no mention at all of Boone's four daughters. Shirley Boone looks lovingly at her husband as he addresses the camera, even when he gives her a bag of charcoal and sends her away with, "Honey, when I hand it back to you, I've got some friends to talk to here." Her submissiveness is understandable. Judging from the frequent interior shots of vehicles with "the latest in modern appliances," it's quite clear that while RV wives may leave home, they never leave the kitchen.

Boone stops by "the world's largest RV shopping center," Travel Land USA in Irvine, Calif., to talk shop with salesman Ron Crump. Crump, who has the wardrobe and personality of Floyd the Barber on "The Andy Griffith Show," shows us models ranging from the Folding Camper (starting at $1,800) to the class A Motorhome (up to $50,000).

Boone reminds us that any vehicle is "a sizable monetary investment." No kidding. Boone proves the point by dropping by Camping World, an "RV accessories outlet north on the Santa Ana Freeway," where all the other expenses awaiting coach owners lie: generators, awning and a "complete line of chemicals for all your sanitary needs."

This video pitch ends with a final shot inside the Boone family trailer, which is the size of the space shuttle. The grandkids elect to listen to rap music over one of granddad's old romantic ballads. "Rappy, rappy, rappy," mocks Pat, who then turns to Shirley, behind the wheel, and says, "OK, mommy, let's go." Hunter doesn't try to sell us anything. His video features Zsa Zsa Gabor, diamonds sparkling, as she rides her Tennessee walking horse. Viewers know right away that owning a horse is beyond their means.

"Hollywood on Horseback" is a vicious tour of celebrities' ranches, from Patrick Swayze's "Rancho Bizarro" on the outskirts of Hollywood to John and Bo Derek's Spanish-style spread above Santa Barbara. Among the Hollywood names on display are yesterday's favorites Robert Wagner and Ursula Andress, as well as current stars James Woods and Danny Glover.

Somehow Cornelia Guest, heralded as "America's No. 1 Debutante," qualifies as a film industry personality, but she more than makes up for her non-star status by bringing along old footage of herself at the International Jumping Derby in Newport, R.I. Her date at this annual social event was a hilariously incongruous Andy Warhol.

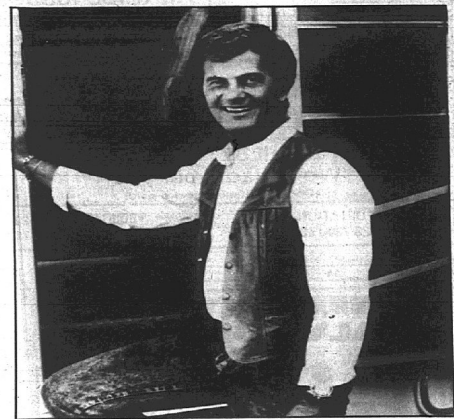

Hunter also has lunch at the Los Angeles Equestrian Center with Linda Blair. The star of the

"The Exorcist" (1973, Warner, $19.98) enthuses, "The communication between animal and man can be so fulfilling." Roddy McDowall, who learned to ride for "My Friend Flicka" (1943), reveals he didn't care for his co-star, in which he claims stepped on his foot during two shots. "I didn't like Flicka at all," McDowall says. "She was what you might call a mean."

"Hollywood on Horseback" has the feel of an episode of "Life-styles of the Rich and Famous," but without the obnoxious presence of Robin Leach. Hunter says he hopes the video will serve as a pilot for a possible television series. As host, he models his short-sleeved shirts from Polo of Beverly Hills magnificently, proving that once an idol, always an idol.

Best Bet:

"The Women" (1939, MGM-UA, $24.95): A masterpiece of 1939, principally because MGM had the good sense to keep director George Cukor working on the picture from the beginning to end (he was fired from "Gone With the Wind"). The glamorous cast features Paulette Goddard, Joan Fontaine, Rosalind Russell, Norma Shearer and Joan Crawford. Cukor treats them all like treats, resulting in the best performance of their careers.

"Ninotchka" (1939, MGM-UA, $24.95): Another masterpiece from 1939. Cinema's premier farceur, director Ernst Lubitsch, takes on the screen's great spinx, Greta Garbo. They both win.

Jimmy Buffett 'not trendy'

By Alan Sculley
Journal Correspondent
"Off To See The Lizard"
By Jimmy Buffett
MCA Records

It is nice to know that the music world still has place for a guy like Jimmy Buffett, an artist who seems oblivious to the coming and going of musical trends.

Every year or so Buffett releases an album filled with his pleasant Nashville-meets-the-Caribbean songs. Using radio ignores the songs, but Buffett's loyal fans always are there to keep him afloat on the charts.

Once in a while, Buffett comes up with an album that stands out from the pack. His new LP, "Off To See The Lizard," is one such record.

The album is of special note to St. Louis music fans. The band PM, which got their start here, plays a big part in "Off To See The Lizard." Band members Peter Mayer on guitar, Jim Mayer on bass and Roger Guth on drums form the core backing band for the album. PM alumni Sheryl Crow also contributes backing vocals.

The new album has a few tracks that sound like potential hit singles. "Carnival World," a light-hearted look at the joys of spending money, is a catchy calypso-flavored tune. Another radio airplay candidate is "Take Another Road," an easy-going ballad. "Pascagoula Run," a peppy rocker with a catchy melody, also could make some radio waves.

Another gem is "Mermald In The Night," Buffett's ode to his creature from the sea—the one who brings out the crustacean in him. Then there's "I Wish I Would Last Forever," which fits in nicely with such classic Buffett songs as "Cheeseburger In Paradise."

From what the album has to offer it sounds like Buffett and PM had plenty of fun bringing "Off To See The Lizard" to life.

"Poor And Famous" By The Beat Farmers MCA/Curb records

The Beat Farmers have not been heard from in these parts for a couple of years. Happily, not much has changed. Their outrageous sense of humor still is very much intact. (Just look at the album cover, which shows the four band members riding in a beat-up car while swilling beer and waving to a crowd of parade watchers.)

The band still includes a couple of novelty-type names on "Poor and Famous." Their frog-voiced drummer Country Dick Montana leads them on "I Can Hold" and "King Of Slesaze."

Most importantly, the Beat Farmers continue to fill their albums with some of the best roots rock you will hear anywhere.

Union's quest for raise for university staff stalls

By Roger Kramer
 Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — About 250 professional staff employees at SIUE continue to fight university administrators over the denial of a pay increase.

John Druke, president of the Professional Staff Association, said efforts to get the employees at least an 8 percent increase have bogged down. Non-union SIUE employees received the 8 percent raise in July.

"I don't expect a settlement soon. It's going to take a long time," Druke said.

Negotiations between the union and administrators Thursday, Friday and Saturday led to no progress, Druke said.

The union filed grievances with SIUE President Earl Lazerson almost a month ago, seeking an 8 percent increase until the union reaches a collective bargaining agreement.

Lazerson returned the grievances because the pay increases to the other employees were granted by the SIUE Board of Trustees. Lazerson said the grievance should be filed with the SIUE chancellor's office in Carbondale.

But Druke said the grievances were filed properly and charged Lazerson was denying due process to union members.

"The administration's action affects faculty and staff alike. University policy cannot be arbitrarily conferred or denied as the administration sees fit. The university administration, as well as all other university employees, must play by the rules," Druke said.

Marsha Puro, SIUE's assistant vice president for administration, said the SIUE Board of Trustees couldn't give the increases to professional staff automatically, because they are represented by a union.

The board gave the 8 percent increase to non-union employees because of the recently passed two-year temporary state income tax surcharge.

"Because of the university's legal obligation to adjust salaries of represented employees through the negotiation process, the salary increase plans adopted by the Board of Trustees did not authorize increases for any non-represented employees, including the professional staff," Puro said.

Eight other unions representing SIUE employees have contracts, Puro said. No group other than the Professional Staff Association had alleged it was being punished, she said.

Salary increases remain a possibility for professional staff, but Puro said many of the employees hold positions funded by state or federal grants. The university didn't receive state appropriations to increase those salaries, she said.

"In the past, salary increases for such employees have usually been determined by the funding levels of the grants," Puro said.

Puro made the remarks in a memorandum to university employees. Druke said he planned to respond to Puro's remarks later this week.

Terry Signorello named acting coordinator of SIUE information center

Terry Signorello of Wood River, formerly student body president of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville (SIUE) and student representative to the SIUE Board of Trustees, was named acting coordinator of the University Information Center.

The appointment is effective Sept. 16. Signorello will fill the vacancy left by Anne M. Graebe, who is on personal leave.

Currently serving as a graduate assistant in the Information Center, Signorello will coordinate the information gathering and referral system, the University calendar of events, the University Ambassadors tour program and the University Speakers' Bureau. Related responsibilities include production of a weekly radio show, direction of a brochure retrieval program, preparation of University brochures and coordination of a want ad service for the university community.

Signorello has an extensive background in public relations, promotions and special event planning. He received a bachelor's degree in mass communication from SIUE in June. In addition to his elected positions with the student body, he was a participant in the Student Leadership Development Program and served as an Ambassador and as president of the University Center Board. He also served as president of the SIUE chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) and

 ... former student leader
 ... former secretary of the organization.

Designated an "outstanding young man of America," Signorello also received the PRSSA Midwest District Award for individual achievement, as well as several Ambassador awards. He was named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and the National Dean's List.

His work experience includes associations with Hill and Knowlton Public Relations Agency in St. Louis and the Alestie newspaper, as well as the Information Center student staff for more than two years.

Scholarships are available

Noble Grand Stanley Hoffman and Mary Roulard of Six Mile Odd Fellows Lodge and Juanita Rebekah Lodge 477 have announced that the Illinois Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, among the world's oldest fraternal organizations dedicated to service for the betterment of mankind, have $12,000 available for scholarship awards during the 1990-91 school year.

The funds are for students who are residents of Illinois and citizens of the United States.

Scholarships will be awarded on the basis of financial need and scholarship ability. There must be an average of "C" or above for the students, who will be attending an accredited college or trade school. There will be three $1,000 awards plus several awards of $500 each.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs form an international fraternal organization, with 15,000 members in Illinois.

Projects of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows include a children's home and day care service in Lincoln, and several apartment complexes for senior citizens and handicapped persons in Lincoln, Mattoon, Illinois, Buffalo and Williamsville, serving nearly 400 persons. They also own and operate a 120-bed skilled-care nursing facility in Mattoon. Recreational projects include the Odd Fellow Lake and Campground five miles north of St. Louis.

Warriors dodge Smith/Cotton bullet, 2-1

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The Smith/Cotton Tigers of Sedalia, Mo., were the wild card team in this year's Tournament of Champions. The Warriors were almost dealt a hand too tough to handle Wednesday.

Pushed to the limit, Granite City got a penalty kick goal from senior Sean Bahkoks 6:02 left in the fourth quarter for a 2-1 win over the scrappy Tigers in Group D play. That gives the Warriors a 2-0 record in the tournament and puts them a leg up on winning Group D.

SC-Bahkoks (Van Buren) 27:03 1-0 GC

SC-Emerson (Baskley) 37:08 1-1

SAVES: Granite City (Greenhaw) 2, Smith/Cotton (Davies) 7

CORNER KICKS: Granite City 5, Smith/Cotton 0

FOULS: Granite City 22, Smith/Cotton 24

They will clinch a berth in the final four with a tie against Aquinas/Mercy tomorrow night (6:30 kickoff). It's even possible the Warriors could make the final four before that game. A Smith/Cotton win over Aquinas today at 3:10 would take care of that.

The Tigers gained confidence as the game went on Wednesday.

Sturdivant advances to sectional

By Mike Kelly
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Junior Chris Sturdivant was the only Warrior to advance out of Tuesday's Granite City Class AA Golf Regional at Arlington Golf Club. The Collinsville Kahoks continued their charge toward the state tournament by winning the regional by 15 strokes over Belleville West. Granite City finished sixth with a 323. The top four teams — Collinsville, Belleville West, Edwardsville and Alton — advance to next week's sectional at St. Clair County Club in Belleville.

The top 15 individuals, including Sturdivant, also move on to the sectional. Sturdivant shot a 79, which put him in under the wire in a tie for the final qualifying spot with Alton's Scott Johnson and Roxana's Rob Royce.

Senior Chad Lane, considered the Warriors' best bet at advancing, shot an 81. Scott Harrison shot an 80. Bill McCormick rounded out the Granite City shooting with an 83. Allen Ledbetter (84) and Dean Sheikh (86) also shot for the Warriors.

"It's nice for Chris to qualify this year," said Warrior coach Russ Chappell. "We'll just hope for the best in Belleville next week. That's a tough course."

"Chad just put a lot of pressure on himself this year to please himself and me," said Collinsville, making it a habit of shooting consistently in the 70s, fired a team score of 286 and finished 15 strokes in front of second-place Belleville West.

Mike Chaney, a Kahok junior, turned in a splendid performance by shooting a 70 to win the individual title by one stroke over Sam Scheibel of Edwardsville.

The challenge of reaching the state tournament in Danville next weekend will become greater when the Kahoks play in the St. Clair County Club. The field will include state powers such as Quincy, Jacksonville and Springfield, as well as strong area teams like Belleville West and Edwardsville.

"I feel we have a good chance to win the sectional," said Collinsville coach Mel Heien. "We'll be going up against some of the best players in the state, so we have to prove that we belong in that category. It's going to be hard advancing out of there, but I really don't care if we win the sectional. I just want to qualify my top five golfers for the state tournament."

Local doctor honored by Quincy College

Before he was accepted into medical school at the University of Missouri at Columbia, Neil Frederickson had plans of playing professional soccer for a few years.

A member of three national championship teams and an All-American his senior year at Quincy College, Frederickson was drafted by the Portland Timbers in 1976.

But the biology major really had his mind set on continuing his education and becoming a doctor, so he declined the club's offer.

In 1980, he saw his dream come true, and now he has a busy gastroenterology practice at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

His schedule now is so hectic that he has little time to kick a soccer ball around anymore. The spirit is willing, he says, but the body isn't.

"The legs don't move as they used to," said Dr. Frederickson. "You know what you want to do, but you can't do it anymore."

His playing days may be over, but his alma mater, Quincy College, has not forgotten the contributions he made to the 1973-76 teams. In fact, he became the 10th soccer player inducted into the school's Sports Hall of Fame on Sunday at halftime of the Hawks' game with Air Force.

"It's a great honor," said Dr. Frederickson, who learned of the school's intention by letter. "I was very grateful to hear they thought of me."

His action on the soccer field speaks for itself. Frederickson played key roles in Quincy's three NAIA national championships (1973, '74, '75) and third-place finish in '76. In 1974, he was named the school's best defender, and in 1975, he was made a team tri-captain.

In 1976, he reaped a list of awards a mile long, the highest being named an All-American. He was also voted Quincy's most valuable player and best midfielder that same year.

Dr. Frederickson's younger brother, Mark, plays professional indoor soccer. He recently signed with the St. Louis Storm

Dr. Neil Frederickson
...Quincy Hall of Famer
and formerly played for the Steamers.

Tigers meet Warriors in pursuit of playoffs

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

After watching the scoreboard go crazy last week, the Warrior defense will need to be sharp to prevent a similar occurrence tomorrow.

Granite City (2-3) travels to the Edwardsville Sports Complex for a 7:30 p.m. non-conference matchup with the 4-1 Edwardsville Tigers on Friday. The Tigers have averaged 24 points per game and are in hot pursuit of a playoff spot.

"Their stats look pretty good, but the best team they played (O'Fallon) shut them down," said Warrior coach Ron Yates.

"But they run their offense out of a lot of formations. Their quarterback isn't too bad, they run a lot of timing patterns and they can move the football."

The Tigers have scored more than 20 points in every game except a 28-7 loss to O'Fallon in the second game of the year. Junior quarterback J.J. Scerba has completed 50 of 94 passes for 547 yards and seven touchdowns.

"He is coming along pretty nicely," said Tiger coach Craig Louer. "I think the mental part of his game has been what has pleased us. His decisions are good, which is why we have so many receivers with good numbers."

Jamil and Andre Jackson have both caught 15 passes, while Jim Powell has 10 receptions.

"They don't throw too many deep passes," said Yates. "They try to get the ball to the backs a lot. Edwardsville probably had a little better offensive line last year, so we'll try to get a little pressure on the quarterback."

But taking the pressure off the passing game is running back Darin Dunnagan. The 6-0, 195-pound senior has 516 yards and eight touchdowns this year while averaging 6.2 yards per carry.

Darin has been very consistent for us," said Louer. "I expected him to have a good year and he has. He's a hard runner and also a very good blocker."

Harriers win county meet

The Warriors put four runners in the top 10 as they won the Madison County Cross Country Meet on Tuesday.

Lance Reynolds was Granite City's top runner as he took fifth on the 3.1-mile course in a time of 17:18, 22 seconds off the pace of individual winner Max Kail of Edwardsville. Giving Reynolds all the support needed for the team win were Brian Seiz, Mark Chapman and Justin Stallings.

They finished 7-8-9 with respective times of 17:39, 17:52 and 17:54 as the Warriors finished with 47 points.

Edwardsville had three runners in the top 10 and finished second with 64 points. Following the Tigers were Collinsville (74), Triad (79), and Alton and Civic Memorial (132 each). Highland won the girls race on a 2.1-mile course with 49 points.

and gave the Warriors (12-3-1) all they could handle.

"We dodged the bullet," said Warrior coach Gene Baker. "We were playing against pressure. There have been some teams which have had to settle for ties this week, so we have to feel good about getting a win out of it."

"We were a little tentative at first," said Tiger coach Tom Knight. "There was a little culture shock for our guys. This is our first time here and it's quite an atmosphere. I don't know if we deserved to win, but we sure played hard enough to win."

Tiger keeper Bart Davis made some good saves early. He picked John Van Buskirk and Skip Birdsong clean early in the second quarter before that two-second combined to break the scoreless tie. Van Buskirk went up for Chad Lignou's free kick at the left side of the penalty area. Davis was caught out of position as Van Buskirk sent the ball towards the empty net. Birdsong banged it in for his fourth goal of the year.

"The goalie came out and was out of position and so was another one of our guys," said Knight. "But you can't blame Davis. He kept us in the game with some saves."

Smith/Cotton (6-7) tied it before halftime, although it was hardly a thing of beauty. Brendan Buckley knocked the ball into the Warrior crease. The ball bounced off the crossbar once before Robert Emerson banged the rebound past Brent Broshaw at 37:06.

"We didn't know what to expect from them," said Knight. "But they gained confidence as the game went on. People have taken them lightly a lot in Missouri and they keep going to the state finals."

The Tigers played a good third quarter and came close early in the fourth. The speedy Emerson got a shot that Broshaw knocked away. Travis Ross got the rebound at sharp angle, but hit the side of the net.

Then the Warriors got their break. Nick Zeffoff's corner kick went to Matt Cook whose point-blank shot was stopped by Derek Wiskur. Unfortunately for him, Wiskur stopped the shot with his hands.

Bain took the penalty kick, the first of the tournament. With Baker's experienced rule allowing everyone — including the goalie — to move with the referee's whistle, Bain hit the right corner as Davis broke the other way. It was Bain's fifth goal.

"It was a legitimate hand ball," said Knight. "Our goal gave us some momentum, but Granite City kept the pressure on. We appreciate the opportunity to play here. I think we looked past our last two games looking forward to this. But we've played many of the St. Louis schools, so I think we knew what to expect."

"This is such a busy tournament that you feel fortunate to avoid an upset," said Baker. "And that's not to slight Smith/Cotton. They are well-coached and very hungry. Our kids will be taking them to class (Thursday) and showing them around. I'm very impressed with their team."

Basketball meeting slated for Oct. 10

There will be an organizational meeting for the Granite City Park District basketball leagues on Oct. 10.

All coaches and managers are urged to attend the meeting, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. that day at the Brown Recreation Center. There will be rules, guidelines and entry forms available. The fee for basketball this year is $175 per team, with non-residents paying $20 per person.

The park district is also considering a 30 and older league. Anyone with any interest in that should contact Babe Champion at 877-3089.

Andre Jackson is also averaging more than six yards per carry, so the Tigers have plenty of weapons. At 4-1 and with Albright on the schedule next week, tomorrow's game is a big one for their playoff hopes.

"Granite City is all we're thinking about," said Louer. "They will be much better than they showed against East St. Louis. And they're getting better. I like (Bobby) Thomas at quarterback. He can scramble and he's tough to bring down. We're kind of small defensively, so we'll have to do some things to compensate for that."

The Warriors have licked their wounds from the East St. Louis game and are shooting for better things the second half of the year.

"Edwardsville might be ripe for an upset," said Yates. "They can't be taking us very seriously. The coaches have to do a great selling job to their players. It's a big game for them, so it's a good position for us to be in. We've knocked Alton and Belleville East out of the playoffs before, and that's fun to do."

But rather than just playing the spoiler role, the Warriors have some goals for themselves. A winning season — or at least 4-5 — isn't out of the question.

"The more goals you have, the easier it is to get ready," said Yates. "Right now we can still shoot for 6-3 and maybe the playoffs. If we lose one, we can still shoot at a winning season."

And Yates figures if the East St. Louis strike lasts a while, a 3-2 record might win the conference, so the Warriors could at least have some say in that regard.

"We just have to avoid the mental mistakes," Yates said. "I can't blame Bobby for the interceptions Friday, because East St. Louis is just so quick in the secondary that they will intercept anybody. But the fumbles, the bad snaps on the punts and the three procedure penalties hurt. I was hoping we could keep the score under 50, and we might have without those mistakes."

"The key for us is to control the ball and limit the other team's chances to score. That's what we'll try to do against Edwardsville."

NOTES: The Warriors lost 41-13 to Edwardsville at Memorial Stadium last year in the first game after the teachers' strike. This year's game will be Granite City's first at the Edwardsville Sports Complex off Center Grove Road. The Warrior sophomore team is 4-1 after an 8-0 win at East St. Louis on Saturday. The freshmen are 4-0-1.
